This lesson on The Patient with Aphasia includes a complete training packet. Each in-service packet takes approximately one hour to complete and fully meets the Medicare in-service training requirements. As aides need training, you can make as many copies as you want - thereu2019s no restriction when used with aides assigned from your office location. Remember that Home Health Aides must have 12 hours of in-service training every year. LESSON OBJECTIVES Upon completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: • Define aphasia • List four measures to facilitate communication in patients with aphasia • List three disease conditions that may cause aphasia, and • Name three key points to consider in providing care. OVERVIEW According to statistics, there are about 80,000 new cases of aphasia in the United States every year. Over a million people in the US currently have some degree of aphasia. While there are many causes of aphasia, by far the most frequent is cerebrovascular accident (CVA). It is a very common diagnosis for patients receiving homecare services, particularly for patients who need home health aide services. Therefore, it is very important that home health aides understand the basic principles of working with patients with aphasia. The purpose of this in-service is to provide general information about aphasia and key points to consider in providing care for affected patients.
