U.S. National Forest Campground Guide - Eastern Region Moon Canyon Publishing

The eastern quarter of this great Nation has the greatest population density found in the land. But not far from any of the metropolitan areas is a delightful escape - a National Forest. It is a comfortable drive from Boston, MA or New York City to the White Mountain, Green Mountain, or Finger Lakes National Forests. Residents of Detroit and Grand Rapids, MI will find fresh air and solitude to counter the stresses of modern life in the Huron and Manistee National Forests. The breathtaking beauty and diversity of recreation found in the Monongahela National Forest attracts visitors from Washington, DC, Pittsburgh, PA, or Charleston, WV, a comfortable half-day drive away. Less convenient to large urban areas such as Minneapolis, MN, Milwaukee, WI, and Columbus, OH but offering magnificent outdoor experiences, are National Forests like Superior with fabulous canoeing, Chequamegon with lakes full of fish and waterfowl, and Wayne along the mighty Ohio River. And then there are ancient forests in, for example, Ottawa National Forest's Sylvania Wilderness. The Hiawatha National Forest boasts a delightful assortment of lighthouses along with the historic Grand Island. With so much available nearby, out-of-doors enthusiasts living in urban areas need to drive only a few hours to find the peace and adventure to counteract stresses and hassles of every day city life. Whether you camp in a tent or a recreational vehicle (RV), there are campgrounds in the U.S. National Forests to satisfy the needs of most campers. The U.S. National Forest Campground Guide - Eastern Region, describes 239 developed campgrounds in 17 National Forests located in 13 eastern states. All of the campgrounds were personally visited and researched by the authors of this Guide. There are more than 50 items of information for each campground, narrative descriptions (including authors' anecdotes), maps displaying the relative location of the campgrounds, and quick look-up tables to help in the selection of a c
