HGS Biochemistry Molecular Model. This type of molecular model is designed with the scale factor of 1 =1cm. One can easily visualize the actual size of molecules by using this scale factor. Models of macromolecules such as various protein cells, nucleic acids, and carbohydrates can be readily constructed. A set of a frame, stands and supporting rods with clamps will assist in balancing the atom positions in the complex macromolecular models. These parts also make it possible to accurately construct complex macromolecular models that are strong, distortion free, and lightweight.
